Who we are:

We are a group of 5 students in a joint Master's degree program in Sustainable Mobility by the RheinMain and Frankfurt University of Applied Sciences in Germany.

What we do:

The "UN Decade of Sustainable Transport" begins in 2026. A corresponding implementation plan was launched in December 2025. We would like to take this as an opportunity to exchange and discuss different perspectives on the future of mobility with interested people from various regions of the world in an online workshop. We will use the "Futures Literacy" concept developed by UNESCO as a framework for the workshop, enabling us to systematically examine different future scenarios and simultaneously question our own ideas and assumptions about them.

When we do it:

The online workshop will take place on Tuesday, 20 January 2026 at 6:00 PM (UTC) and will last approximately 3.5 hours. Since the workshop spans multiple countries and continents, please note the corresponding start time in your local time zone.

Why you should participate:

You have the chance to network with young people from other regions of the world, to exchange ideas about possible developments in sustainable mobility, and to get to know a format to engage with the future. We also issue certificates of participation.
