It has been said that the way to the laboratory leads through the library. That statement is true. Without books, journals and information, there cannot be any work of professional value or any good learning, teaching or research results. Thus, the library in a way reflects the image of the institution in which it operates. This is especially true for faculty libraries, which must cooperate in teaching and scientific work.

The library of the Department of Textiles, Graphic Arts and Design was founded in 1962 along with the department. As the department grew, the library grew with it. During the initial period, it collected material from the field of textile technology. When the Chair of Textile and Fashion Design was established, the procuring of professional literature was extended to the areas of design, fashion and art, and with the introduction of the clothing and graphic programmes, it was extended further to include clothing, graphics, information technologies and media.

Towards the end of 2014, the library collection totalled 20,639 books, 3,777 graduation and thesis papers, 5,088 issues of journals, 363 units of unbound material and 644 standards. In 2014, the library subscribed to 88 foreign and Slovenian journal titles. Throughout the year, the library lent out 25,800 volumes of material to its students, professors and other users. Electronic sources are available on DIKUL, i.e. 31,900 e-books and eight databases.

SAFE – for the return of materials – all users can return borrowed materials at a time when the library is closed. Safe is at the door of the library.
